Matt Kiel is a senior counsel in the Los Angeles office of Foley & Lardner LLP and a member of the firm's Transactions Practice Group.

He represents private equity sponsors, strategic buyers and sellers, and growth-stage companies in complex M&A transactions, joint ventures, equity and debt financings, and corporate advisory matters across industry verticals. Matt brings particular depth in Technology, Energy and Cleantech M&A and advising cross-border clients in domestic investments.

Matt was recognized as the 2025 M&A Emerging Leader of the Year by the Los Angeles Business Journal (in partnership with ACG Los Angeles) in the publication's inaugural M&A Awards.

Matt currently serves as a Trustee on the Board of Trustees of Western University of Health Sciences, a graduate institution with twenty-five accredited health sciences programs including a Tier-1 medical school.

He is active in firm leadership as a member of Foley's National Recruiting Committee and co-leads entry level attorney recruiting in the firm's Los Angeles office. Matt also serves on the office board of the Boys & Girls Club, where he volunteers annually as a moot court judge and instructor in the Street Law Program.
